

BETTER BATHROOMS & KITCHENS

A RELAXING RETREAT

YOUR VERY OWN DAY SPA

This ensuite began with a straightforward concept: to replace the existing fittings in the small space. Upon seeing the room that was to be transformed, Better Bathrooms & Kitchens had a vision to create a space the homeowners could relax in, by converting their bedroom into a luxurious day spa.

The homeowners are empty-nesters with a taste for travel. They were keen to introduce some of the luxury they experience at hotels abroad into their own home, so Better Bathrooms & Kitchens' idea for a day spa was an exciting solution for this couple.

To bring to life the day spa concept Better Bathrooms & Kitchens needed to perfectly blend the two spaces to become one cohesive room. To maintain privacy the toilet was hidden and sound-proofed, while the bath, a soft addition, was made to be an artistic feature.

The vanities blend flawlessly into the bedroom, without a protruding bowl and tapware. The additional hidden storage behind the wall mirrors creates extra storage space, and the shower which was also seamlessly integrated.

Not only is this unique space stunning, it is also efficient. The use of LED lighting throughout the room offers mood lighting with low energy consumption. The tapware is also compliant with water-saving standards.

When all the elements combine, the result is a seamless bedroom and bathroom area that provides the homeowners with their very own private retreat. Now, when they're not travelling the world, they are able to relax in the comfort of their own home.

Karen Agnew and Garrett Hebden from Better Bathrooms & Kitchens designed the space with personal touches added by the homeowner along the way. The result is a room to rival any day spa.
