

BETTER BATHROOMS & KITCHENS

AMERICAN BEAUTY

A VISUAL FEAST

For this project, the homeowners came to Better Bathrooms & Kitchens with a strong idea of the type of kitchen they wanted. Inspired by a door profile from a previous project the company had completed, they enlisted Better Bathrooms & Kitchens to help incorporate that same door into their vision for a Hamptons-inspired, industrial aesthetic. The kitchen also had to be wheelchair-friendly to ensure the homeowners' son could move freely around the room and enjoy the space.

To achieve the industrial element of the design Better Bathrooms & Kitchens utilised brushed stainless steel hardware, an industrial-look cooker and steel pendant lighting. Typical of American Hamptons-style kitchens, exposed hinges and cabinet doors are set on top of a frame.

To accommodate the wheelchair, the island bench has a clearance of 1100mm to 1200mm around it, leaving plenty of room for the homeowners' son to use the space comfortably. The island also includes six drawers, which house all the glassware and crockery.

The homeowners also wanted to limit clutter by installing a butler's pantry that doubled as an office nook. Better Bathrooms & Kitchens incorporated a pantry/galley behind the kitchen where clutter can hide. It also ensured there was ample storage space within the kitchen by including two utensil drawers either side of the stove, which ensures everything is within reach when cooking. Below these are cupboards with slide-out shelves so that other cooking necessities, such as oils and herbs, are also on hand.

The double sink with a pull-out tap means washing up is simple while an additional sink in the pantry allows the homeowners to hide dishes when entertaining. The butler's pantry also has three metres of additional bench space to enable food preparation and convenient placement of appliances that would ordinarily clutter kitchen work space.

Better Bathrooms & Kitchens specialises in designing and building all styles of kitchens, and operates throughout metropolitan Melbourne, completing about 50 projects each year.
